You don't have to let circumstances (or your tendency to procrastinate) keep you from having a great holiday.

In this quick read, 'Twas the Week before Christmas, you'll find:

- Why doing things in the last week of Christmas can work to your benefit
- How to create an easy Christmas map- your go to direction guide for the week before Christmas- in 15 minutes
- How to "batch" gifts to make more (even with less time)
- 6 simple Christmas party themes to put together in less than 48 hours
- Fun (and easy) icebreaker games for the Christmas party
- More than 27 gifts to make and give

You can read it through or you click on the chapters most relevant to you.

Christmas may come at the same time every year, but December is also the month the rest of life tends to collide, collapse or go crazy.

There's no reason to worry.

You and I can create a fabulous Christmas, make a few homemade gifts and be ready with a plate of cookies for Santa. After several years of experimentation, I've figured out a few ways to work through the kinks in the holiday season and still show up for the Christmas Eve service.

It comes down to throwing out the detail (that means you can chuck the forty-two point to-do list), get some focus, turn on Nat King Cole and get creating.

What do you want to do to make Christmas special and memorable? Do you want to go caroling with friends? Throw a Funny-Christmas sweater party? Make a batch of candles? Make gifts with all the pictures you've taken? Have time to spend with the people you love?

If you have a creative bent, there's no better time to do something with it than at Christmas time. Whether your creativity is bent towards watercolors, photography, baking, decorating or throwing a party, you've got what it takes to create a fabulous Christmas.

Merry Christmas and Happy Creating!
